

PATRICK GEDDES TRUST AWARDS' SCHEME

Introduction

The Trust's awards' scheme seeks to promote interest in and understanding of Geddes' principles.

It invites participation by students in Planning, Architecture, Geography and Environmental Studies attending Scottish universities. Monetary prizes up to £100 are awarded under three main categories.

Objectives

To raise interest in and awareness of the Patrick Geddes principle of "Place, Work, Folk".

To promote the importance of place and its relevance to-day.

To identify examples of distinctive and sustainable places in which to live and work.

To embed Geddes thinking in the basic training of planners and of those in related disciplines.

Sir Patrick Geddes 1854-1932

Eligibility

Undergraduate and postgraduate students studying Planning, Architecture, Geography or Environmental Studies at a Scottish university

Categories of Award

Category 1 An award for a piece of course work reflecting some aspect of the Geddes principle of "Place, Work, Folk".

Category 2(a) An award for the best dissertation by an undergraduate student reflecting some aspect of the Geddes principle.

Category 2(b) An award for the best dissertation by a postgraduate student reflecting the Geddes principle.

Category 3 An award for the best first year undergraduate student.

Categories 4(a) and 4(b) An award for a piece of normal course work that demonstrates the benefits of applying Geddesian principles in delivering good planning practice.

Submissions

Category 1 submissions may be made by Departmental nomination, or by a student directly

Category 2 submissions should be by Departmental nomination only

Category 3 submissions should comprise one nomination only by each Department on behalf of an individual student

Category 4 submissions to be made by departmental/course leader nomination only with only one entry in each section permitted per university.

Form and Content

Any format is acceptable for Category 1 and Category 3 entries provided it is manageable and presentable for consideration by the panel of judges. Any supporting/illustrative material should preferably be in the form of images on CD-Rom in jpeg format with image resolution of at least 300dpi.

Category 2 entries will comprise copies of dissertations as submitted for graduate and postgraduate degrees.

Source of Work

Previous academic year and winter term/semester of the current academic year.

Judging

An independent panel of judges will be appointed by the Trust to whom recommendations will be made on the awards under all categories.

Final decisions on the awards under each Category rest with the Patrick Geddes Trust.
